

Humanity's Inner Shift

a commentary from Master Yeshua

Much is being written and discussed about "the shift." There are obvious external shifts as Mother Earth – the great, independent Being of which we are part – goes through her own vibratory evolution, travels her own spiritual path. That shift is not my focus, nor is the "ascension" that is so commonly partnered with "the shift."

There is simply far too much fear and speculation being shouted out to humanity about the spiritual changes – shifts – that are going on, not only for Mother Earth, but for the Great Beings throughout the cosmos that we call planets and stars. If that is the information you want, then there are plenty of people out there explaining how they see these shifts. I speak of the shift that must happen for humanity, the inner shift that must accompany the cosmic outer shift. And that inner shift, simply stated, is "awakening."

This can be one of humanity's finest decisions, as – on a mass scale – they awaken to who they are as souls.

- Internally, humanity awakens to the relationship they have with their personal souls, with Creation, with God in whatever way they see the Divine Creator.
- They awaken outwardly to the responsibility they have for relationships to other people, other life forms, including their responsibility to the Earth on which they live. Without the Earth, humanity does not exist. It is that simple.

The shift of which I speak is tied to recognizing the inescapability of Oneness¹.

Now clearly not everyone who is part of this shift understands the total ramification. Yet they are awakening. They are awakening as individuals, and as individuals they are forming groups. I will emphasize that again: forming and working in groups.

This awakening is what the shift is about. People may awaken in many different ways. They will use many different words. They will respond with action in many different ways. The constant through all this will be changing relationships, most importantly changing relationships with established institutions – be they economic, governmental or spiritual.

Complete success may not be a given, but there is a base of spiritual stability in humanity at this point in time, and forward looking optimism, and leaders who are calm, assured, and peaceful – leaders who are presenting ways forward.

All this creates great optimism that humanity will make decisions to build anew, to free itself from institutions that no longer serve. After Egypt and Egypt's approach to this shift, my personal optimism grows.

It cannot be ignored that humanity is at a decision point that is approximately the same place they were once before – in Atlantis.

We who know what happened, we who remember what it was like, and everyone who understands what the consequences of failure would be for the evolution of humanity on Earth – we state unequivocally that we do not want another Atlantis.

There are many writings on this phenomena as well. I will simply say that I view this as a great opportunity before humanity. I see the opportunity to choose the path of love, Oneness, sharing, growth, and inner awakening.

This is the opportunity that lies before humanity. And, quite frankly, with any opportunity, we are back to our friend "free will." You can, of free will, choose to pound the drum of fear. You can, of free will, choose the path of awakening.

There is a state of spiritual maturity in humanity that gives me hope that the path of awakening is – and will continue to be – the path that is chosen.

Thank you.
