

Your Heart – Doorway To Your Soul

an essay from

Master Yeshua

The heart is the doorway to the soul – a doorway for the soul. How many times have those of you reading this heard, “Put the mind aside and let your heart guide you”? It has been said in many different ways . . . countless ways.

Letting the heart rule, I would make perfectly clear, is not letting the emotions rule in any way whatsoever, but rather letting the heart be the gateway to, and for, the soul – the heart as an orbit around the God spark within, the heart as a chakra, the heart where the lifeline from the soul connects.

The heart is the communication center for the soul’s life purpose, for the soul’s past-life wisdom, for the soul’s intention in this life. The heart is the doorway to the soul’s knowledge.

Heart Receives – Mind Implements

When the heart functions as communication central, the mind, then, can implement what knowledge the heart will give forth. And there is intuitive knowledge, there is wisdom. All this is being introduced to the physical being through the chakra system.

There is energy behind what the heart gives forth. This energy connects with your awareness, your consciousness, which is another anchor point for the soul in the physical brain. There is then created a triangulation – from the soul on its own plane, through the head or consciousness and through the heart.

But it is the heart that is the gateway for the soul’s knowledge, wisdom and current intention. The heart, used properly, used to its full extent by the physical vehicle, becomes a broadcasting center. It becomes a radar, and, with your awareness, becomes a mechanism for becoming at One with your environment.

Now when I say the environment, I am not bound to a formal environmental statement. So when I say the environment in this context, I include the people you meet, the people you live with, the people you interact with. That is your total environment. And when you connect with them through the heart, through the radar system your heart provides, through the awareness system at the disposal of your heart wisdom, there is no room for anything but compassion and brotherhood. Because you recognize then, at that level, that there is only Oneness.

The energy system that connects us all carries this message of Oneness from heart to heart, carries this message and radiates all that is coming from your soul – the wisdom, the intentions, the purpose, the past life history. All this radiates out through the energy system I call Oneness, the energy system that, I'm sorry, no one escapes. It is there. It is Creation.

When the heart, as the gateway to the soul, radiates the beauty of soul energy out into that energy system, you become receptive to the beauty that energy system returns. This may be a technical description that some object to, but it can be boiled down to, "What goes around, comes around." And that is true of this energy system. All that is sent out into this maze of energetic interconnections finds its way back to you like radar. It bounces off, it bounces back.

Now, what does that mean in your day-to-day life? Well, I would ask you to think on that.

Radiant Energy Walking – You!

Once the heart, as the gateway to the soul, has been opened, has been aligned with the signal, you are a walking radiant energy. You are a mobile radiance moving through this energy system. Envision that. You are light radiance moving through this energy system. And what you transmit is bounced back to you. What has bounced back to you then bounces through your physical vehicle.

When there is strong emotion, when there is irritation, and there is anger, and there is psychological pain – I am talking of things like loss, things that fall into self-pity or greed, energies that are less healthy to the spiritual advancement of humanity. When these energies are being radiated, they are not being radiated from the heart, they are being radiated from ego, from the mind and the emotions. And when that energy pours out into the Oneness, into the energy system, it is just so much pollution. That's all it is.

Some of that pollution clings, and you will find yourself walking in pollution of your own making. So I would challenge you to be aware – cognizant, conscious – for even an hour or two. I'm not going to ask a whole day, just be aware for even an hour or two as to what kind of energy, and where it comes from, that you are pouring into this system of Oneness. This energy can change with the movies you watch. I have spoken of movies.¹

The energies you send out certainly change when you are faced with circumstances you consider to be rude or unfair. What happens? How do you respond?

Whatever your response is, it radiates outward, and it will return one way or another. Ill health, or vulnerability, can be one way the energy returns. But that energy goes out, and the more energy you pour into it, the more you keep it alive.

Life's Events

Let's say someone you care about very much neglects you on your birthday, and this hurts, it angers, it disappoints, and there is an emotional reaction. In one way or another, you nurture this negative feeling, and nurture how thoughtless they were, and nurture what they could have done if they had only cared, and nurture wondering when they had stopped caring or why. The point is that you are nurturing this negative energy that you are spewing into the Oneness.

And what happens? If you have read previously, then you'll remember that the elementals that build thought-forms start creating.²

The more energy you put into this negativity, the stronger it becomes because the more the elementals create. You create this negative thought-form through them. You have called them to help you create this negativity, and you know what? It surrounds you. It surrounds you and it oozes into the Oneness in which you live. It becomes pollution. Think of it as tar. Think of it as so much tar being thrown into the environment, and beginning to encase you.

Now, in a heart view, from a heart space, drawing on the wisdom, the power, and the love of the soul, what other alternatives are there for reacting to the fact that someone forgot your birthday? Someone that you care very deeply about, someone you are expecting to acknowledge your special day?

Expectation And Response

You were expecting someone else to behave in a certain manner toward you. You were counting on them to behave in a certain way towards you, and they didn't. Now, using the heart as the doorway to the soul, what are your alternatives?

You could respond in a way that is not pouring fertilizer on this negativity, is not feeding this negativity, but is taking another look at what could be done or how else you might respond, or what kind of concern you might have. Perhaps this person is ill. Perhaps this person is feeling overworked, frustrated. Who knows what is going on in the mind and in the life of this person. Even if it is your spouse, there may be something going on that you don't know about, an incident that was difficult for some reason. It can be many things.

One way of dealing with the situation is working from the heart as the doorway to the soul, and using soul wisdom to assess this situation and choose your response. If you work it right, in spite of the hurt which will be there – acknowledge the hurt, own your disappointment, own what it is – if you work it right, now you have radiated into the environment, your concern, your love, your wisdom, your light. This you can do.

So the heart, being the entry and the doorway to the soul, can radiate and be a radar, bringing back to you the love, the radiance, that you put forth, and lighting the Oneness as you transition through it.

Conclusion

My blessings upon you all. May you realize that the heart is the doorway to the soul, and realize all that the soul can bring through in wisdom and compassion and Christ Consciousness, to help you manifest Divinity on earth, help you radiate light and love and wisdom as you move through the Oneness of Creation.

When you rise in the morning, open the door and make certain it stays open all day, in all your encounters, so that what you are radiating into the environment, into the Oneness, into the energy system in which you move, will benefit those you love, those you meet, all of humanity. And like the radar signal bouncing back to you, will radiate your life as well.

Blessings,

Master Jeshua
